Other leave entitlements during parental leave

Accumulating leave during parental leave

An employee doesn't accumulate any type of paid leave while they're on unpaid parental leave. This includes paid leave such as annual leave or sick leave.

Paid leave also doesn't accumulate when an employee is getting the Australian Government Paid Parental Leave Scheme payments, if the person is taking unpaid leave from their employer at this time.

Paid leave may accumulate when an employee is on employer-funded paid parental leave.

Taking other leave during parental leave

During unpaid parental leave employees can take:

- accumulated annual leave
- long service leave if the law in the state or territory allows it.

If there's a public holiday during the annual leave, it won't be paid.

Employees on paid or unpaid parental leave (including employees taking annual leave during unpaid parental leave) can't take:

- sick leave or carer's leave
- compassionate leave.

Example: Taking annual leave during unpaid parental leave

Maggie is about to take 12 months unpaid parental leave. She wants to take some annual leave during her parental leave so she has income in the later months of her unpaid leave.

She agrees with her employer to take 4 weeks annual leave in her ninth month of unpaid parental leave. These 4 weeks don't extend Maggie's unpaid parental leave period. Instead, they will run at the same time.

There's a public holiday during Maggie's annual leave. She won't be on annual leave for the public holiday and won't get paid for it. She agrees with her employer to extend her period of annual leave by 1 day, so she still gets paid for 4 weeks of leave.
