

Fair Work inspectors to make educational visits to Wollondilly employers

3 May 2010

The Fair Work Ombudsman will make educational visits to about 60 businesses in the Wollondilly Shire next week.

Fair Work inspectors will doorknock businesses to provide information packs to employers entering the national workplace relations system for the first time.

They will focus on the commercial precincts of Tahmoor, Thirlmere, Bargo and Hill Top.

This follows educational visits to 50 businesses in Moss Vale and 50 in Berry last month.

Fair Work Ombudsman NSW Director Mark Davidson says the informal visits are aimed at assisting employers to understand changes to national workplace laws, including the introduction of the National Employment Standards and Modern Awards.

The information packs include helpful resources such as fact sheets, templates and Best Practice Guides and provide advice about practical steps employers can take to adjust to the new system.

This year, the Fair Work Ombudsman will make educational visits to 10,000 employers in NSW, 10,000 in Queensland, 5000 in South Australia and 1000 in Tasmania. There will be additional visits in 2011 and 2012.

"We are very serious about our job of building knowledge and creating fairer workplaces and we are strongly focused on ensuring the community understands its workplace rights and obligations," Mr Davidson said.

"The best advice I can give to business operators is to get the basics right and everything else should start to fall into place.

"By the basics, I mean knowing what Award applies to your employees, what the correct classifications for your employees are and what pay rates apply."

The Fair Work Ombudsman has more than 200 advisers available to speak with business operators on its Fair Work Infoline on 13 13 94 from 8am-to-6pm weekdays. For translations call 13 14 50.

Relevant, up-to-date and user-friendly resources are also available at www.fwo.gov.au.

The Fair Work Ombudsman has contracted the services of State Government industrial relations agencies in NSW, Queensland and South Australia following their recent referral of state powers to the Commonwealth.

As a result, the Fair Work Ombudsman now has more than 450 workplace inspectors operating out of 59 offices across the country, increasing the Agency's capacity to conduct face-to-face visits with employers and employees.
