

Taking annual leave

Annual leave accumulates based on an employee's ordinary hours and allows them to take paid time off from work.

Requesting annual leave

An employee needs to request to take annual leave before going on leave. The process for requesting annual leave is often set out in an award or registered agreement \(www.fairwork.gov.au/Dictionary.aspx?TermID=2034\) , company policy or contract of employment.

An employer can only refuse an employee's request for annual leave if the refusal is reasonable.

Rules for taking annual leave

Awards, enterprise agreements and other registered agreements can set out rules about:

- taking annual leave in advance
- managing large amounts of leave.

Find information in your award by selecting from the list below.

Based on what you've told us, it looks like you're covered by the Cleaning Services Award 2010 [MA0000022].

Taking leave in advance

Employees can take annual leave in advance if their employer agrees in writing. The agreement needs to:

- be signed by both the employer and the employee (if the employee is under 18 their parent or guardian must also sign it)
- say how much annual leave is being taken in advance
- say the day the leave will start.

Employers have to keep this agreement for the employee's records \(www.fairwork.gov.au/pay/pay-slips-and-record-keeping/record-keeping\) .

If an employee takes leave in advance and their employment ends before they've accrued it all back, the employer can deduct the amount still owing from their final pay.

Employers and employees can use the Annual leave in advance template \(DOCX 20.6KB\) \(www.fairwork.gov.au/ArticleDocuments/766/ageement-to-annual-leave-in-advance.docx.aspx\) to record annual leave taken in advance.

Excessive annual leave

An excessive annual leave balance is at least 8 weeks of accrued annual leave (10 weeks for a shiftworker).

If an employee has an excessive annual leave balance, they can give their employer notice that they're taking a period of leave, which their employer has to allow. This only applies if they:

- haven't been able to agree with their employer about when to take the leave
- have had an excessive annual leave balance for more than 6 months
- don't have arrangements to take leave so that they no longer have an excessive annual leave balance (e.g. directed by the employer to take leave or already have planned leave).

The employee needs to give the employer at least 8 weeks' notice (and not more than 12 months) of when the leave will start. The leave has to be at least 1 week long and can't result in the employee having less than 6 weeks accrued leave.

An employee can't request leave using this method for more than 4 weeks (5 weeks for a shiftworker) in a 12 month period.

Direction to take excess annual leave

For information on whether employers can direct employees to take leave if they have a large amount accrued, go to Direction to take excess annual leave \(www.fairwork.gov.au/leave/annual-leave/directing-an-employee-to-take-annual-leave/direction-to-take-excess-annual-leave\) .

How much annual leave can be taken at one time?

There's no minimum or maximum amount of annual leave that can be taken at a time. Provided both parties agree, an employee can take a part day, single day or a number of days or weeks off.

Employees don't need to take all of their annual leave at once.
